

Haywood Trial Still Drags On.

Boise, Idaho, July 4.—At the adjourned session of the trial of Wm. D. Haywood for the murder of J. Edgar Stansbury, the prosecution asked the jury to return a verdict of guilty. The defense attorneys, however, requested a continuance to the 10th inst. to enable them to present further evidence. The court granted the request, and the trial was adjourned until Monday.

Last Day of Edmonton Smugglers Caught at Squires Knocked Out Well Known Edmonton Man Shot

The Edmonton Fair came to a close last evening. The features of the last day were the stock parade and the fire for all. The latter, however, was somewhat of a disappointment, for only three horses started and the winner was never allowed to show his best pace. The other races on the whole were well contested. The results were: Free-for-all Trot, 3 in 5. Tom Keene 1 1 1. Palmer 2 2 2. George M. 3 3 3. Time 2:16, 2:22, 2:30. Three-eighths Mile Dash: Chief 1 1 1. Friar 2 2 2. Watercross 3 3 3. Baseball.

Calgary Took One From Capitals. The depleted Broncos caused Edmonton to bite the dust last night in the first of the series at the Capital city. The Pirates, who were the away team, were given a trial by the Edmontonians, but was apparently nervous and did not pitch as steadily as usual. Calgary also had a new pitcher in the game, one Sykes whom Ellier brought back from Chicago and the Edmonton batters only got one run off him in six innings. Ford was in his old place behind the bat for the Capitals and performed well. The game was called before the end of the seventh inning on account of darkness and consequently only six innings count. Score by innings: 000000—0. 002000—2.

The Hague Peace Conference

The Hague, July 4.—The opposition to the American proposition before the Peace Conference on the "Inviolability of private property" is increasing. It now seems that Russia and France are not in favor of the Russian "inviolability" clause, but the Japanese have not presented a proposition regarding the use of wireless telegraphy, based on her experience during the Russo-Japanese war, while other powers are desirous of preserving the submarine cables as being neutral property.

The New Treaty.

Ottawa, July 4.—In connection with the departure of T. C. Boyle, deputy minister of finance, today to meet Mr. H. H. Brown in Paris, it was mentioned that no trade negotiations with other European countries are likely to be opened up until a new treaty is arranged with France. Canada has at present a treaty with France, but it is a one-sided arrangement. The most objectionable feature of the present treaty is that France under the treaty enjoys the privilege of shipping not only direct to Canada, but through Germany, Austria, Italy, and Russia, while on the other hand Canada can only ship direct to France and cannot get the advantages of the treaty on goods shipped by Britain. Any arrangement made by the ministers must be endorsed by Canada and Britain before a treaty has been arranged and ratified.

The department says that this privilege does not in any way interfere with the existing arrangements between both countries. The boat has to be out of Lake Ontario, enable it to go through the locks.

Moroccan Bandit Scores

London, July 4.—The capture of Kaid Meulan, the virtual commander of the forces of the Sultan of Morocco by Raisuli, is regarded here as a major stroke of the bandit, whose successful career started with the seizure of San Percarini. Evidently Meulan was completely housebroken yesterday he telegraphed to the Sultan that Raisuli had agreed to all former proposals. Tangiers, July 4.—The British legation here confirms the announcement of Kaid Meulan's capture. The Sultan is launching a punitive expedition against the Adria tribe of this vicinity owing to the fact that they had not paid their tribute to his majesty's collectors. Raisuli says he will hold General Meulan until he is granted the following terms of surrender: First—the construction of Raisuli's house at Zinat. Second—the payment of an indemnity of 100,000 ducats, about $200,000. Third—the re-appointment as governor of Tangiers and of Fez and his appointment as commandant of police.

League Leaders Lose to Uthbridge.

(Special to the Chronicle) Calgary, July 4.—A closely contested game this evening had a most exciting finish, Uthbridge making the winning run in the last half of the ninth inning after being behind until that time. It was good baseball from start to finish. Klipped for Uthbridge pitched a better game than Hollis, the Medicine Hat pitcher who was hard at times. Scores: Uthbridge 0000001002—2. Medicine Hat 00000010—2.

Food Standard Wanted.

Hamilton, July 4.—The food standard question was discussed at the city's session of the Retail Merchants Association and a resolution was passed calling on the government to pass a law to protect the public against impure and harmful foods and drugs and providing for the punishment of people who place on the market impure and harmful foods and drugs and make the public believe they are pure and wholesome food or medicine. The government will be asked to establish a standard of quality for all spices, vinegars, baking powder and products, crude or preserved meats, vegetables and other foods and medicine sold under proprietary or trade names. A vigorous attack on departmental stores was made by AM. Farrer, of Hamilton, and E. W. Trower, secretary of the association. They accused the big stores of "padding" misleading and false advertisements, and also "believed" that the goods they sold were not always what they represented them to be. Trower also went after the ministers when he accused them of making false things about their business in their respective localities and that put a stop to the public's confidence in the government. The meeting expressed the approval of the control of natural forces and commodities.

THE FATHERS OF CONFEDERATION.

(Free Press.)

Only a small proportion of the people of Canada have seen the painting by Harris of the Fathers of Confederation which hangs in the national gallery at Ottawa. Reproductions, however, have made the picture a fairly familiar one throughout the Dominion. It should be a more familiar one to all Canadians than it is. A reproduction of it forms the frontispiece of the current number of the Canadian Magazine, to which Mr. John Lewis, of Toronto, contributes a pleasantly written article containing appreciations of some of the leading figures on that historic canvas, which shows us the conference at Quebec in actual session discussing the terms of the Confederation that became an accomplished fact forty years ago last Monday.

There has been much discussion as to what man or what cause contributed most to Confederation. The idea of a union of the British American Colonies dates back to a much earlier period than that of the pre-Confederation debates. But while due credit must be given to the authors of the various early proposals that were made, looking to this end, the practical question is by what events and what plans the plan was taken out of the realm of speculation into that of action? As the brilliant D'Arcy McGee, himself, one of the Fathers of Confederation, said, "Events stronger than advocacy, events stronger than men," brought about the union of the scattered provinces.

What were these events? There was first the extremely unsatisfactory relation of Upper and Lower Canada under the old Legislative Union, resulting in a series of weak administrations, and finally in dead-lock, according to Goldwin Smith, was the real parent of Confederation. The difficulty was aggravated by faction, but the system was inherently and fatally defective and would not have worked well under any circumstances.

To whomsoever we may assign the chief credit of bringing about Confederation, the two men who had most to do with working out the system, were unquestionably Sir John Macdonald and Sir Oliver Mowat. The former holds the central place in Harris's painting, standing with a document in his hand, at the side of Sir Etienne P. Tache, the chairman, in the act of addressing the conference. George Brown's conspicuous place in the centre of the picture is also a well deserved one, as is Sir A. T. Galt's. Writing of Brown, Mr. Lewis introduces a recollection of Sir Richard Cartwright's which deserves repetition. "On that memorable afternoon when Mr. Brown, not without emotion, made his statement to a hushed and expectant House and declared that he was about to ally himself with Sir George Cartier and his friends for the purpose of carrying out Confederation I saw an excitable, elderly little French member rush across the floor, climb up on Mr. Brown, who, as you remember, was of a stature approaching the giant, fling his arms around his neck and hang several seconds there suspended, to the visible consternation of Mr. Brown and to the infinite joy of all beholders, pit, box and gallery included."

Of the fathers of Confederation only two are still living—Sir Charles Tupper, who played a leading part, and Senator A. A. Macdonald, of Prince Edward Island. "That they may both live to see a good many more anniversaries of the Dominion, whose constitution they helped to frame, is the wish in which all Canadians heartily join."

Some time ago we noted an article in the New York Times in which doubt was expressed whether a hundred United States citizens had taken out naturalization papers in Canada in recent years. The official figures of last year are now available. They show that 8,888 American citizens became Canadian citizens within the twelve months. Thus, a good percentage of the heads of families who settled in Canada in 1902-3 are now actual citizens. The official figures confirm the observation that our cousins from the south when they actually take up residence in this country acquire the status of citizenship as speedily as the naturalization regulations will permit, and begin forthwith to take their part in the government of the country. In short they become good Canadians. In ten years time we shall find American born Canadians in the legislatures and in Parliament, and filling other representative and responsible positions. There is nothing in this prospect to give cause for alarm, however, notwithstanding the lugubrious anticipations of Mr. Roblin—Free Press.

DRESSMAKING HINT.

4 Screens Used as Hanger When Making Closets.

Unfinished screens should be hung up, not folded in fact, much unfinished work is lost by this treatment, but the hanging must be properly done or the result will be worse than that of folding. If one has not sufficient closet room to give the desired space for the regular season's sewing, the following will be found very convenient. On the back of a screen tack, at the top only, a strip of ticking about four inches deep; over this tack, again at the top only, a piece of muslin long enough to form a drop curtain nearly to the floor and slightly full.

To the under strip any amount of work may be fastened with safety pins. The curtain falling over will protect from dust. The screen can be pretty well folded and set across a corner without injuring the work in the least.

When attaching waists to this device, fold together so that the shoulders are even and put two safety pins at the neck, one at the shoulder and one directly in front. This prevents any sagging and the formation of any unsightly wrinkles.

Another advantage that hanging has over folding is that one can see at a glance just what is waiting to be done without turning over and possibly missing anything not needed at the moment.

A Persian Rug Tells

Steel Persian rugs have often been sold at such low prices that they have ruined their own. One day a woman went out to buy a very fine rug, and after looking at the rug she finally decided to purchase a beautiful cream colored one, which the salesman declared was a genuine Persian rug.

"This," the man continued, "is the best proof of its genuineness," and he took from the open grate a red-hot coal holding it tight in the rug. Then, to the utter astonishment of his customer, he touched the coal to the splendid rug, calculated as the rug sizzled, giving off a little smoke and an odor of burning.

"Don't worry," the salesman remarked, as he threw the coal back into the grate and pointed to a charred spot on the rug as a half dollar sign in an especially light portion of the creamy wool on ground, whereupon, with his hand, he brushed all the burnt part away, and the rug looked as if it had never been through any modern ordeal of fire. Perhaps the price was an eighth of an inch shorter, that was all, and, besides, the untrained eye could not observe that small defect.

"A Persian rug that will not stand the fire test is not worth your attention," said the clerk, declared as he took down the lady's order for the genuine Persian rug.
